Gender auditing is a procedure for assessing educational institutions and developing actions based on gender perspectives. The study evaluates universities' ability to provide a safe and secure environment for female students, professors, and administrative staff. Participatory audits programme for gender audit has been initiated under the mentors of Centre for Women's Studies this year and the results will reveal institutional strengths and obstacles in integrating gender equity into systems, operations, programmes, and activities.

CBPR HUB

Sangwari

INDIA

Chhattisgarh

INDIA K4C HUB (RAIPUR)

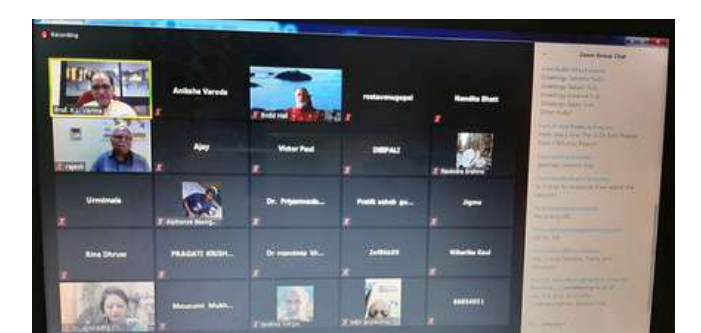

Sangwari CBPR Hub was constituted under a tripartite agreement between State Planning Commission, PRIA, and Pt. Ravishankar Shukla University, Raipur. The objective of the Hub is to co-create knowledge with community groups and academia, focusing on issues related to the UN, SDGs 5.

Community Based Participatory Research(CBPR)

International exposure of the Sangwari CBPR Hub

Sangwari hub is one of the 14 hubs worldwide that works for Co-construction of knowledge and its application to the solution for community issues is a part of Community Based Participatory Research. For community appraisal CBPR equitably involves community and academic partners, recognizes the unique strengths of each, shares leadership and resources, addresses issues of the community, and uses information gained for community benefit.

Best Practices

The CBPR practice in the University has found a mention in the Report of UGC on “National Curriculum Framework & Guidelines, 2020 for Fostering Social Responsibility & Community Engagement in Higher Educational Institutions in India” under Unnat Bharat Abhiyan (UBA), a flagship program of Government of India.

Sangwari hub is one of the 14 hubs worldwide that works for Co-construction of knowledge and its application to the solution for community issues is a part of Community Based Participatory Research. For community appraisal CBPR equitably involves community and academic partners, recognizes the unique strengths of each, shares leadership and resources, addresses issues of the community, and uses information gained for community benefit. The center focuses on SDG 5 and conducts community studies on health issues, women centric issues, community knowledge, environmental problems , gender concerns, poverty and education. Field work is conducted by the students and along with the community partners to find asolution of the community issue for bringing a social change. Knowledge for change (K4C) mentors have contributed 3 projects and 65 projects in last five years have been submitted by the students enrolled in various community issues. These dynamic work together is critical to understand the added value of CBPR in achieving social justice.

GARBAGE PICKERS ATTITUDE & PROBLEMS: A CBPR APPROACH

- It is a common sight to see children carrying rags on their backs for picking and collecting reusable plastic bottles, beer bottles, cans, used packing of eatables, cardboards etc in the residential areas and at places near the dumping grounds.
- These children don't go to school in spite the govt providing free education at school level . When we asked them they said they have the issues of social acceptance when they sit in the classrooms because of the professions their families are involved. Hence prefer earning their living through garbage picking and reselling.
- The children involved in garbage picking earn money by selling the collected reusable material.
- Although the scavengers play a crucial role in waste management system but they should not be devoid of formal education rather waste management system has to be made more organized.
- This is how the issue to be addressed was identified.

FUTURE PLANS

- Start Diploma, PG, and Ph.D Course in Women Studies.
- Intra and inter institutional, networking to be developed.
- Increase involvement of community members specifically youth for awareness regarding gender issues.
- Developing MOU with various agencies to facilitate capacity building among women and girls .
- Using CPBR for promoting SDG5
- Develop CWS/ Sangwari hub as a Research Centre to work on women issues through community connect (CBR training).
- Awareness program regarding Sexual Harassment of Women at workplace (Prevention, Prohibition and Redressal) will be organized for institutional colleges affiliated to the university.
- Programs for special abled women and girls.

Best Practices

- The university's appointment of transgender individuals as security guards, facilitated by the Centre for Women's Studies, marks a significant step towards inclusivity and equal opportunities.
- The CWS also promotes gender equality through diverse programs and conducts campus safety audits. Notably, the National Conference on Science and Technology for Women Empowerment and Rural Development, held in collaboration with the National Academy of Science, featured a Women Scientist Round Table and the Women for Scientific Social Responsibility (WSSR) initiative.
- Female innovators showcased products ranging from herbal goods to scientific models, reflecting a commitment to innovation and sustainable development.
- The university has also helped reintegrate dropout children working as garbage pickers in slum areas back into school.
